A prestigious Hôtel Particulier in the heart of Paris

Built in 1860, this Hotel Particulier belonged to Alfred Sommer, a sugar refiner. The mansion has just been restored by a descendant of his family, into a luxury hotel.

The former Salons of Alfred Sommer now offer exceptional reception spaces. Magnificently decorated and equipped with the best communication tools, they are available both to guests staying at the Hotel and other customers.

Close to Madeleine and in the heart of the central business district of Paris, the Hotel Alfred Sommer benefits both from a strategic location and a quiet street.

Thus, the Opéra Garnier, the Champs Elysées, the rue du Faubourg Saint Honoré, and the most important Department Stores of the City of lights are within walking distance. Five metro lines and ten bus lines serve it.

Five historic Salons in the light of the day

Sommier Salons are suitable for the organization of professional meetings and receptions as well as private events.

The four lounges located on the ground floor of the mansion were designed for the social gatherings of Alfred Sommier. Nowadays, they offer an incomparable setting for meetings and entertaining, just in front of a magnificent interior garden. This unique setting offers customers the opportunity to enjoy a relaxing aperitif or meal complementing the event privatization.

The Hotel also has the Archives lounge, located on a lower level with natural light. Each meeting room is equipped with the fastest and safest communication systems.

Guests can benefit from a private entrance, independent of the hotel lobby.
